

A man in silhouette is working on a large, textured stone sculpture in a room with large windows. The man is wearing a dark jacket and pants, and is looking up at the sculpture. The sculpture is made of large, rectangular blocks of stone, some of which are stacked on top of each other. The man is using a tool to work on the surface of the stone. The room has large windows with a grid pattern, and the light is coming from the windows, creating a strong silhouette effect. The overall mood is artistic and focused.
